

Lecture Summary

Over the course of this discussion, participants will come to understand the ways by which Holocaust denial and Holocaust distortion appear in a variety of national and cultural contexts. In addition, we will learn how distortion and denial relate to many forms of present-day antisemitism, strategies to combat these challenges inside and outside of the classroom. We will discuss a number of resources, including those established by the EU, the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, UNESCO, and the International Holocaust Remembrance Alliance.

Please let me know if you need anything else or if the scheduling will work for the May program (apologies again for having such a busy week at the start of May, but 3 May is still open [as is 7 May]).