A half-hour documentary-feature film "Serbia Bigger Than Fear: Professor Pavlović's Lecture on Silence" sheds light on the fate of the victims of the massacre committed in October 1941 in the town of Kragujevac and surrounding villages. Through the characters of the professor and director of the First Kragujevac Grammar School, a German officer, a mother whose child was shot and a boy-witness to the shooting, viewers will be able to get acquainted with historiographical facts about the Kragujevac tragedy and thus enrich and objectify their knowledge of World War II.
