Case study: Holocaust distortion in the classroom

To raise awareness of the dangers of Holocaust distortion and its impact on societies

- To develop knowledge and critical understanding of various forms of manifestation of Holocaust distortion
- To engage participants' processes of critical analysis of manifestations of Holocaust distortion
- To motivate participants to take action to counter Holocaust distortion

The spread of disinformation, fake news, propaganda, and hate speech, is one of the biggest challenges facing societies all over the world. False or misleading information about the Holocaust threatens the memory and understanding of this part of our history, while perpetuating hatred, antisemitism, conspiracy theories and disregard for the truth. This workshop is intended for teachers who are interested to learn more about Holocaust distortion and to develop educational activities that raise awareness about Holocaust distortion and contribute to preventing and countering it.
