

LECTURE/WORKSHOP SUMMARY

Greece, North Macedonia, Bulgaria - Kavala 2022

Speaker : Nikos Missolidis

The WWI, the effects and the aftermath in the Balkans, 1915-1919. Digital application in the serve of the modern history education

Nikolaos Misolidis, Researcher & PhD Candidate, Modern and Contemporary Greek and European History at the University of Peloponnese.

Title of the lecture: "The WWI, the effects, and the aftermath in the Balkans, 1915-1919. Digital application in the serve of the modern history education"

- The main goal of the current lecture is to promote the usage of digital applications and databases such as Libraries, Archives etc. in modern history education.
- Digital archival material such as maps, photographs, historical films, newspapers and of course the official state and local digital archives could and should assist teachers and educators to build up and enrich the lesson of history in elementary and secondary education. Furthermore, using the novel applications of Digital Humanities in History, educators will be able to transform the educational procedure, making it interactive and allows both the educators and the students to interconnect with the events of History, to comprehend the society in which those events occurred.